Mothers Are Gods Special Gift Classic Stories for 21st Century Moms These classic stories and poems were compiled to give hope and encouragement to todays moms. They were written a long time ago, but are as relevant today as when they were penned. Each story portrays a mothers deep love for her child. You will relate to the trials and heartache, as well as the joy that mothers throughout time have experienced. Above all, you will find renewed faith and confidence that God cares for you just as you care for your child. This inspiring collection contains the following stories and poems: The Story of a Mother - Hans Christian Andersen The Happy Family - Hans Christian Andersen Small Means and Great Ends - Julia A. Fletcher My Grandmothers Cottage - Rev. J.G. Adams Telling Mother A Childs Puzzle The Boy Who Never Forgot His Mother My Baby - Euclid Somebodys Mother --- Excerpt from Small Means and Great Ends; /i> --- Oh! how I do wish I was rich! said Eliza Melvyn, dropping her work in her lap, and looking up discontentedly to her mother; why should not I be rich as well as Clara Payson? There she passes in her fathers carriage, with her fine clothes, and haughty ways; while I sit here sewing all day long. I dont see what use I am in the world! Why should it be so? Why should one person have bread to waste, while another is starving? Why should one sit idle all day, while another toils all night? Why should one have so many blessings, and another so few? Eliza! said Mrs. Melvyn, taking her daughters hand gently within her own, and pushing back the curls from her flushed brow, my daughter, why is this? why is your usual contentment gone, and why are you so sinfully complaining? Have you forgotten to think that God is ever good? No, mother, replied the young girl, but it sometimes appears strange to me, why he allows all these things. Wiser people than either you or I have been led to wonder at these things, said Mrs. Melvyn; but the Christian sees in all the wisdom of God, who allows us to be tried here, and will overrule all for our good. The very person who is envied for one blessing perhaps envies another for one he does not possess. But why would you be rich, my child? Mother, I went this morning through a narrow, dirty street in another part of the city. A group of ragged children were collected round one who was crying bitterly. I made my way through them and spoke to the little boy. He told me his little sister was dead, his father was sick, and he was hungry. Here was sorrow enough for any one; but the little boy stood there with his bare feet, his sunbleached hair and tattered clothes, and smiled almost cheerfully through the tears which washed white streaks amid the darkness of his dirty face. He led me to his home. Oh, mother! if you had been with me up those broken stairs, and seen the helpless beings in that dismal, dirty room you would have wished, like me, for the means to help them. The dead body lay there unburied, for the man said, they had no money to pay for a coffin. He was dying himself, and they might as well be buried together. Are you sure, Eliza, that you have not the means to help them? asked Mrs. Melvyn. Put on your bonnet, my dear, and go to our sexton. Tell him to go and do what should be done. The charitable society of which I am a member will pay the expense. Then call on the dispensary physician, and send him to the relief of the sick one. Then go to those of your acquaintance who have, as you say, bread to waste, and mention to them this hungry little boy. If you have no money to give these sufferers, you have a voice to plead with those who have; and thus you may bless the poor, while you doubly bless the rich, for It is more blessed to give than to receive. I hope you enjoy reading this book. Thanks for your purchase.
