SULTAN BAHU: LIFE & POEMS
Translation & Introduction Paul Smith
Sultan Bahu (1629-1691) was a Sufi Master and poet who founded the Sarwari Qadiri order. Like many other Sufis of the Indian sub-continent Sultan Bahu was a prolific writer. However, it is his Punjabi poetry that made him a household name. His poems are sung in many genres of Sufi music, including qawalis and kafis. His Persian ghazals are not well-known but are of equal significance. Both in this collection are well-represented. His mausoleum is located in Garh Maharaja, Punjab, Pakistan. He authored over one hundred and thirty works and treatises, mainly on Sufism. Nurul Huda (Light of Guidance) and Risala-e-Roohi (Book of Soul) are the most popular, along with his poetry collection in Punjabi Abyat Bahu and his Divan of ghazals in Persian.
